

February – The Month for Lovers

Happy February!

Can you believe that already one twelfth of 2010 is behind us? I hope this finds you having completed one twelfth of your personal goals for the year. If you're not there yet, February can be the time to "Rise Up" (remember our theme for 2010) and push your real estate career forward.

February is the month for lovers, so remember to make time for your loved ones and recognize how important they are in your life. Don't forget Valentines Day ... get your cards early!

During this month for lovers, I also invite you to fall in love again with your real estate career. Renew and reinvigorate your passion for being a REALTOR[®], show your clients how much you care and find the joy that comes from serving others and helping them achieve their dreams and goals.

Nurture your career by attending TIGAR's many learning opportunities this month. We have lots of classes and seminars for you to attend ... just check out our website under Education to see all that's available.

Attend our breakfast meetings every Thursday at 8:30. It's our weekly "Power Hour" which you can use to network with others and listen to some great speakers on topics of interest to you and your career. Don't miss the February 11th meeting for our special "Secret Pals" event.

And while you're falling in love with your career again, don't forget to share the love with your association by remembering to pay for 2010 dues and fees by the February 15th cut-off.

2010 is going to be great years of opportunity ... fall in love with real estate again and enjoy the year ahead.

And remember ... as always ... we're here for you!
